TO REBUILD

The Regie Tobacco Warehouse
Destroyed Dec. 7, 1907.

W. T. Tandy is preparing to rebuild the tobacco warehouse destroyed by rioters on the morning of Dec. 7, 1907. The site is on the corner of Campbell and Fourteenth streets and the lot has been vacant for nearly four years. At the time of the fire the warehouse, a frame structure, was occupied by Tandy & Fairleigh, buyers for the Italian Regie, the senior member of the firm being a brother of the owner of the house. The new warehouse will be occupied by M. H. Tandy & Co., whose house floor warehouse in the Latham property was burned at the same time. The site of the Latham warehouse is now owned by the city of Hopkinsville, having been devised to the city under the name of Peace Park.

A crop of sorghum was raised on the Regie lot this year.

TRIPOLI

Occupied By Italians Without Resistance By The Turks.

London, Oct. 6.—The Italian flag floats over Sultanla Fort at Tripoli, which is occupied by landing parties. Part of the fleet is anchored in the harbor and the other warships lie a short distance from the dismantled fortifications. Few bodies of Turks have been found among the ruins of the forts and apparently no great number of Turks were killed by the bombardment.

Struck For Chicken.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 6.—Because they were not fed fried chicken for dinner the strike breakers on the Illinois Central in the local shops struck and only under the promise that they may have all the fowls they desire in the future would they return to work.

Every luxury that can be had is being given the strike-breakers. No disturbances have been reported.

C. O. PROWSE READY TO FLY

Will Be at Home This Month and Navigate the Atmosphere.

LETTER BY-AERIAL ROUTE.

Hopkinsville Inventor Has Realized His Ambition
To Fly.

The Kentuckian yesterday received a letter from Judge C. O. Prowse, who has been in St. Louis all this year, perfecting his flying machine. The letter is postmarked "Aeroplane Station No. 1, Aviation Field, St. Louis, Mo." The letter is also marked "Aerial Route," and was started from Ferguson, Mo., in an airship, whether Judge Prowse's own machine or not he does not say. The letter follows:

Fairground Park, Oct. 5, 1911.
To the Kentuckian and my many friends:

I am glad to say that I will be in the "old town" some time during the latter part of this month to give an aeroplane exhibition, and I promise one worthy of the name. For several months past I have been having a lot of trouble with the machine, by reason of the fact that it was insufficiently powered, which, however, is all over with now as I have a motor giving all the power needed and in fact having a reserve force.

This, no doubt, will be the first mail matter that the "Kentuckian" has ever received via an "Aerial Route," as this letter will be carried in an aeroplane, as the envelope will show.

By reason of the "air voyage" of the letter, I am limited in space, as the U. S. postal authorities require all letters to be exceptionally light. With best regards to all, I am,
Sincerely yours,
C. O. PROWSE.

MILL CASE NEARS END

Defense Expected To Close This Morning and Argument
Begin.

MAY GO TO JURY BY NIGHT.

R. H. DeTreville on Stand For Many Hours In His Own Defense.

All of the time in Circuit Court has been taken up this week with the trial of the embezzlement case of R. H. DeTreville, former President of the Acme Mills & Elevator Co.

The Commonwealth closed its testimony Thursday evening. The leading witnesses were Allen Fisher, the expert accountant; Geo. D. Dalton and C. H. Dietrich, two of the directors, and Clyde M. Hill former bookkeeper. The testimony of Fisher was very exhaustive and he was examined and cross examined at great length. The defense began Thursday afternoon with Mr. DeTreville on the stand and he was cross-examined yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Jno. B. Galbreath, former Secretary, was placed on the stand when Mr. DeTreville finished, and remained under examination until court closed.

It cannot be foretold at this writing when the case will go to the jury.

TURNS TO GREAT BRITAIN

Negotiations With Germany for Aid Prove Fruitless.

London, Oct. 4.—The Daily Mail's Saloniki correspondent says that as negotiations with Germany have proved fruitless, the government is now turning to Great Britain in quest of modus vivendi satisfactory to Turkey's honor. The committee of union and progress approves the new cabinet, but if negotiations with the British government fail and the ministry displays any sign of yielding to Italy, the committee will overturn the cabinet and the chamber.

Rev. E. W. Coakley Resigns.

Believing Act Is Invalid No Proclamation Issued.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 4.—Believing that the act of the legislature, designating Oct. 12 as Discovery day is invalid, Governor Marshall will not issue a proclamation calling for a general observance. Attorney General Honan in an official opinion today describes the invalidity of the act. Charles A. Greathouse, state superintendent of public instruction, says that too many holidays break up the school work and he has issued no order for an observance by the school children of the state.

STRIKE TROUBLE.

Growing Worse In Mississippi and Texas.

Martial law was declared in McComb City, Miss., after a pitched battle between strikers and strikebreakers, during which many were injured some probably fatally. Troops were rushed to the scene. One man has been killed in Houston, Texas, and one in Cairo, Ill., as the results of disturbances. Another striker has been jailed in New Orleans. Paducah strikers are said to have asked for cancellation of the strike order.

Brother's Crazy Deed.

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 5.—Having invited his brother, Charley Larson, to spend the day with him, Frank Larson, a farmer living near Lyons, Neb., took him into a room apart from the rest of the family and shot him through the heart. He then ran out of the house, hailed a passing wagon and rode to Lyons. After attending to some business without speaking of the tragedy, he hunted up the village marshal and told his story. There was no quarrel, it is said, and no motive for the crime is known.

Jericho's Walls Didn't Fall.

Reports have been sent home by Prof. Sellin, who is in charge of one of the two German expeditions at work in the Holy Land, concerning the results of excavations at Jericho, better known to the Christian world as Jericho, notwithstanding the recorded falling down of its walls, the triple belt of masonry round Jericho according to Prof. Sellin, is excellently preserved, and inside are still the remains of the walls of the dwelling houses of the city, some of them to a height of a couple of yards or more.

The houses are small, those of the Canaanite princes being distinguished from those of the ordinary inhabitants only by the greater number of the rooms. Many utensils have been found, of stone in the time of Canaanites, and of bronze since the year 1,000 B. C.

THE BOARDING HOUSE.

"Half a dozen lean boarding-house years have steered me safely past 'Bohemia.' After such a course in common sense you don't stand back and examine the pictures of a pink Moses in a nest of purple bull rushes, or complain because the bureau does not harmonize with the wall paper. Neither do you criticize the blue and saffron roses that form the rug pattern. 'Deedy not! Instead you warily punch the mattress to see if it is rock-stuffed, and you snoop into the clothes closet; you inquire the distance to the nearest bathroom, and whether the payments are weekly or monthly, and if there is a baby in the room next door. Oh, there's nothing like living in a boarding house for cultivating the materialistic side."—Edna Ferber, in "Dawn O'Hara."

LIGHTNING KILLED WORKMAN.

A recent heavy thunderstorm caused a terrible accident involving the death of nine men and the injuring of ten others, at Grand Quevilly, near Rouen, France lately. About fifty masons and carpenters were working on a large building which was in the course of construction, when a thunderstorm broke. Instantly the roof of the building, where about two dozen men were working, was struck by lightning. The roof and the principal walls collapsed. Some of the men were killed instantly—some by the lightning, and others were crushed to death.

SCIENTIFIC POINT CLEARED UP

Size of Water Particles Now Known to Change With the Age of Clouds.

It seems rather singular to speak of the "age of clouds"—of "old clouds" and "young clouds," yet it really appears that such a distinction can be made, and that the discovery, as so frequently happens in matters scientific, was based upon a preceding mistake.

The conclusion was reached years ago in scientific quarters that the density of a cloud was proportioned to the number of water particles it contained, the water particles, in turn, depending upon the particles of dust present. Later, however, these same authorities ascertained that their first conclusion was wrong, and that in many clouds the density falls far short of proportionality with the number of water particles. Further investigation points to the fact that the size of the water particles changes with the "age" of the cloud. The clouds upon which the first observations were made must, it is thought, have been old clouds, and in them the water particles, being comparatively large, appeared to be proportional to the density. But the later observations were made upon newly-formed or young clouds, in which the particles were small in size.

EASY ONE FOR "PROPHET"

Congressman Coined Epigram and Stated Absolute Fact in One Brief Word.

Congressman Homer Bulb of Nevada was famed in his day at Washington as a raconteur and epigrammatist. Whenever he sat down in the lobby of the Dingle house, his headquarters at the capital, he was sure to gather about him in no time a group of friends and acquaintances and to convulse them over and over again with his sallies.

One of these, the butt of which was Senator Montgomery Twell, is particularly well remembered by the Dingle's Old Guard.

The senator entered the hotel one evening, looked long and solemnly at the skies, which were cloudy, and then remarked to Congressman Bulb in a tone of rally:

"Well, Bulb, I know you pride yourself on being a prophet. What sort of a day do you think we'll have tomorrow?"

"Wednesday," replied Congressman Bulb.

Among those who heard him was Col. Anthony Batherswyck, the civil war veteran, who lost no time in telling the quip all over Washington.

How Franklin Learned Manners.

Franklin collected thirteen principles to cover the small amenities of daily life. Each week he picked out one and practiced it diligently, thus creating a habit. It took three months to cover them all. Each year he practiced each one four full weeks. He kept this up for many years. The uncouth Franklin of early manhood, who found fault with his wife for giving him a silver spoon and a china bowl for his bread and milk instead of a pewter spoon and earthenware crock, developed into the statesman and man of the world who won the respect of Englishmen, the admiration of Frenchmen and the gratitude of Americans.—Engineering Magazine.

Chocolate at First Disliked.

Chocolate was regarded as an invention of the devil by a considerable class in England during the seventeenth century. A formidable treatise was written in order to denounce the use of the beverage by monks. The treatise appeared in 1624, but the monks saw to it, by destroying every copy that came their way, that its circulation was small and brief. Chocolate houses succeeded coffee houses in London as centers of a supposed greater refinement, although Roger North describes them as centers for the benefit of "rooks and cullies of quality, where gaming is added to all the rest," and where plots against the state were hatched by idle fellows.

Doctor's Subscription.

"I been awful sick sence I seen yo', Mrs. Saunders," announced Reginald, the colored man, who came to shake Mrs. Saunders' rugs the other day. "Seemed like I would die, sho. Ev'rybody was a-rec'mendin' dere fav'rite med'cine an' I done took all de different kinds day tol' me 'bout, but I jes kep on gettin' wuss tell my wife, she say to me: 'Wot yo' foollin' wit dem rem'edies fo'? Yo' don' know wot's in 'em! Go 'long an' git de doctoh to subscribe fo' yo'.' So I went to de doctoh an' he give me a subscription dat cure me r-a-ight away."

Turn Evil Into Good.

Madagascar is visited every year with a plague of locusts, which does a vast amount of damage to the crops, but it is an ill wind that blows nobody good, and so these insects are highly esteemed as food by the natives. The locusts fly within two or three feet of the ground, and, on the approach of a swarm, the people rush out of their huts and strike them down with flat baskets. Then the women and children gather them up from the ground in sacks, where they are divested of wings and legs by a severe shaking up. These extremities are carefully winnowed out, the bodies dried in the sun or fried in fat, and

Who Was There That You Knew?

Of the shadowy ranks of those who marched to defeat or death or victory fifty years ago in the mighty conflict that convulsed this great nation, is there a father or grandfather or uncle of yours? Would you like to see a photograph of him in that long ago day of his youth—a photograph that he never knew he had? Perhaps we can show you one; and in any case, we can tell you a story, stranger than any detective fiction, of 3,500 priceless photographs that were lost and are found again.

3,500 Long Buried Photographs of the Civil War

THEY were taken by the greatest photographer in the United States of that day; they were bought by the United States Government for $30,000; they were buried in the War Department for 50 years—they are buried there still. But a duplicate set was kept by the photographer—who died poor and broken down; that duplicate set was knocked from pillar to post for nearly 50 years, until it was discovered by a New England collector. J. Pierpont Morgan, tried to secure the collection—President Garfield and General Benjamin F. Butler said it was worth $150,000—yet with the help of the Review of Reviews, the entire collection has been gathered into 10 great volumes and is placed within your reach at less than the value of one of the photographs. It is the one accurate, impartial history of the Civil War—for the camera cannot lie. It tells the story of the War you never heard before. Taken under protection of the Secret Service, these photographs bring to light thousands of little-known phases of the war; they penetrate to strange places and record strange things.

LIKED CONTACT WITH GOLD

Peculiar Vagaries That Have Affected Men Possessed of Sudden and Great Wealth.

A Parisian journalist who had speculated in railway shares won 200,000 francs as the result of a lucky venture. Drawing it in gold, he proceeded to a hotel, emptied the bags of gold in the bed and went to sleep literally in the sands of Paetolus. The man was so crazed by his good fortune that he found indescribable pleasure in revelling in a golden bath.

Paganini, the violinist, when he received the proceeds of his concerts (he insisted upon being paid in gold), used to wash his hands in sovereigns. A French novelist, Soule, wrote a book called "The Memoirs of the Devil." It was successful; the publishers paid him for the first volume $10,000 in gold. The author carried the gold to his bedroom, poured it into a foot bath, and enjoyed for half an hour the excitement of moving his feet to and fro in a bath of gold coins, smoking meanwhile the biggest of Havanas.

A Chicago merchant of great wealth, believing certain symptoms indicated that he would become insane, consulted a specialist and under his advice became an inmate of a private asylum. For twelve years there his recreation was piling up gold coins and then knocking them over. At times he washed his hands in gold eagles and half eagles. At the end of the long seclusion he returned to his business and in twelve months confirmed the thoroughness of his recovery by amassing $500,000.

THE SAUCY YOUNG BRUTE

Prospective Mother-in-Law Didn't Want to Lose Her Daughter, but Why the Delay?

Mrs. DeGross drew a deep sigh when her daughter told her that she had become engaged to Mr. Bobles.

"I suppose it's foolish of me to feel so bad about it," she said, wiping her eyes, "but I can't help it. I know it's a woman's destiny to be married, dear, and I have always hoped that you would marry and be happy. But a mother can never lose a daughter without feeling deeply on the subject. She can never help regarding it as an awful loss—a tragedy. She cannot give up her little girl, even to the best man that ever lived, without the deepest reluctance."

"But, mother, dear—I shall come and see you often. And you mustn't cry as if it were going to happen right away. You will have time to get used to it."

"Will it? How soon are you to be married?"

"Not for nearly a year. Bob thinks that—"

"Not for a year? What on earth does he mean by putting it off that long? I don't believe he intends to marry you at all, the smirking young snip! If he did, he'd insist on having the wedding before September. And I shall tell him so. You bring him to me, Clara. You tell him that he'll either marry you next month or never. Huh! I'll show him!"

Education.

What is education? Emerson says that the greatest teacher is not the teacher who supplies the pupil with the most facts, but the one in whose presence the pupil becomes a better person. The great secret of education lies in respecting the wants of the pupil. It is not for us to say what another shall know or even do. That part of the game of life is chosen and foreordained and the pupil alone holds the key to his own needs. Emerson begs us to respect the child. He reiterates his plea to respect and wait and see the new product of nature develop. We are not to be too much the pupil's parent. We are not to be too often in his solitude. We are to let him alone. Give the pupil an opportunity to exercise and express his every faculty, and then—hands off!

About Thimbles.

The thimble was at first worn on the thumb, and for that reason was called a thumb hell, which later became thimble and finally thimble. It was invented by the Dutch, and brought to England in 1695.

The first thimbles were made of iron or brass; later came those of silver, gold, steel, horn, ivory, pearl and glass. The Chinese make beautiful thimbles of carved pearl, with gold binding and ends.

One of the most gorgeous thimbles ever seen was a bridal gift from the king of Siam to his queen; it was made of gold, shaped like a lotus bud, and was thickly studded with diamonds, arranged so as to spell the queen's name.

Bargain Sale in Moving Pictures.

A suburban draper has hit on a novel idea, says the London Chronicle. The scenes at his great bargain sale are to be reproduced at a local picture theater. "Go and see it—see if you can recognize yourself in the crowd." To all his patrons the enterprising shopkeeper issues tickets which admit to the show at reduced prices. Will it answer? Of course. For he appeals to two human instincts—the desire for a bargain and the desire to see oneself, as it were, in a looking glass—cheap. Why else does anyone turn and glance at the reflections in a free looking glass? The shopkeeper appeals to the common meanness and vanity of his fellow mortals.

LIFE INSURANCE IS POPULAR

More Than Twenty-Eight Million Persons in America Hold in Regular Companies.

The number of persons in this country who make use of life insurance as a means of saving exceeds the total number who avail themselves of all the other recognized modes of thrift.

If we add together the nine millions of savings bank depositors, the seven millions of persons who own their own homes, the two million building and loan society stockholders and the million and three-quarters of corporation stockholders, we shall have, not reckoning duplications, not more than twenty millions of investors.

Whereas, according to Moody's Magazine, the number of persons who hold policies, ordinary and industrial, in life insurance companies, exceeds twenty-eight millions. These twenty-eight millions do not include the number of certificate holders in fraternal and assessment associations, old line or legal reserve life insurance being the only kind of insurance that is worth the serious attention of business men.

The total life insurance carried in the United States today is about $150 a head of the population, a sum considerably greater than that of any other country in the world. The companies reporting to the New York insurance department had on December 31, 1910, $14,680,268,315 insurance in force. They had a total premium income of $533,060,996 and assets amount to $3,665,630,535, which represents approximately as large a sum of money as the total savings in all the banks of the country.

DEFINED

"Woman is a riddle," remarked the Fly Flat.

"Yes," agreed the Simple Mug. "She keeps us guessing, and we hate to give her up."

BUT ONE OF FAMILY LEFT.

A tragedy in which a family was almost entirely annihilated, occurred a few days ago at Châtelleraut, France. M. Jourdain was with his wife and three children on the banks of the Vienne. Mme. Jourdain was standing on a sandy bank about to bathe her little daughter, when the bank gave way and both fell into the river, which is about twenty-five feet deep. M. Jourdain jumped in to save his wife and child, but he, too, disappeared. Then the eldest son, a boy of sixteen, jumped in and sank, the second boy, aged ten, followed his brother, and was drowning when Lieutenant Philipponneau, who was in a boat, arrived on the scene and dived after the youngest boy. He seized the lad and managed to reach the bank safely with him. The bodies of M. and Mme. Jourdain and the two other children were recovered later.

BRAVERY TO BE REWARDED.

A memorial in the shape of a crucifix is to be erected by the British government on the Rock Tion-gue-neau on the coast of Brest, where 17 bodies were recovered from the wreck of the British steamer Kurdiston several months ago. The ceremony of the unveiling of the monument will take place in a few months' time, and rewards will then be given by the British government to the Breton sailors who rescued the bodies.

NATURAL DISTINCTIONS.

"Pop, ain't a horse pistol a big one?"

"Yes, Willie."

"Then is a Colt revolver a little one, pop?"

HAVE GOOD IDEA OF DRESS

Many Men Possess the Artistic Eye When It Comes to Matter of Feminine Drapery.

There is an old tradition to the effect that men lack discretion as well as artistic eye in the selection of a becomingly gowned woman. A man notoriously at sea in the matter of feminine frocks was asked to design what to his mind was a graceful dress for the beautification of the womanly figure. The result not only vindicated men of the charge of ignorance concerning the becoming feminine drapery, but established for him a wisdom and artistry in designing that many devotees of the latest sartorial spasm, be it modestly pretty or daintily ridiculous, will do well to cultivate.

The fabric of the gown evolved by the mere man was a soft clinging crepe de chine of shadowy blue tone. It was cut in kimono fashion, with loose-hanging Oriental sleeves. The neck was slightly rounded out to show the smooth, white column of the throat, and the gown hung free from the shoulders, falling in long, sweeping lines, with just a suspicion of a sweep at the back. In front an elongated huckle of the blue material, embroidered with dull gold threads, held a wide girdle, which was wound around the waist empire fashion, tied in an odd knot, with short upstanding loops in the back, from whence long, loose ends, finished with gold and blue, fell to the bottom of the skirt. The whole gave a slightly empire effect, and the whole gown appeared to swathe the figure in folds of pastel blue. Such a gown must in the very nature of itself, conceal any offending angular lines, just as it would of necessity heighten the symmetry of the softly curving ones. Grace of carriage and elegance of attire were its indubitable followers, so much so that one wonders why the distress and fatigue of countless hours at the dressmaker's are endured, when art is so very simple.

THEIR APPETITES WITH THEM

2½ Pounds of Meat and 12 Quarts of Strong Drink Per Capita Is French Record.

Frenchmen are pretty able trenchermen, but the following account of a meal made by eight Norman peasants surpasses expectations. According to the Medical Journal, a grazier with seven of his friends undertook an expedition to gather fagots.

Among them they should have managed some 400 fagots, but 37 represented the sum of their work, the small total being accounted for, possibly by the luncheon which the octet devoured. They managed to consume 20 pounds of meat, 8 quarts of pure perry, 16 bottles of assorted wines, 9 bottles of champagne and 8 quarts of elder brandy of an alcoholic strength of 65 per cent. A roast goose, placed thoughtfully among the rations, was not required.

This luncheon represents an average of 2½ pounds of meat and 12 quarts of milk, none of it weak, per capita during the 12 hours occupied by the expedition.

Color of the Eye.

Brown eyes are due to a brown pigment laid down in the iris; blue eyes are due to a lack of such pigment. When both parents are brown-eyed the children get the tendency to form iris pigment from both sides of the house, and the condition of the pigment is said to be duplex. If the children get the tendency from one parent only, they will have brown eyes, but the condition is said to be simplex. Two parents lacking brown in the iris (blue eyed) will never have children with brown eyes, but only with blue eyes. If both parents have brown eyes simplex, then one in four of the children will have blue eyes. If one parent has simplex brown eyes and the other has blue eyes, one-half of the children will have blue eyes. But if in both or either one of the parents the blue iris pigmentation is duplex, all of the offspring will have brown eyes.

The Return of the Prodigal.

When the elder brother of the Prodigal Son came near his father's house he heard, according to the Authorized Version, "music and dancing." Dr. Rendel Harris, in address at Westminster college, Cambridge, says that the word for music in the original is "symphony," and that symphony means the bagpipes. Wycliffe's version gives the word symphony, but no other translator has done so. Wycliffe also says that he heard "symphony and a crowd." Now, crowd is the Welsh crwth or harp. In view of the two instruments, Dr. Harris says that the elder brother had some justification for getting angry.—Christian World.

French Lawyers Went on Strike.

Over 300 years ago one of the most unusual strikes ever recorded took place in Paris, when all the lawyers walked out, so to speak. A law or ordinance was issued and promulgated by the French king, Henry III., ordering all lawyers to sign their pleadings and to state the amount they were charging their clients for their services. This was done so that the lawyers could be properly and sufficiently taxed on their income. The lawyers objected, and the strike, causing an entire stay of judicial proceedings, followed. Peace was restored by the non-enforcement of the ordinance, though it was not repealed.

Cream of News Compiled and Collected
From all Sources.

W. J. Bryan is to campaign Kentucky Oct. 30 and 31 in a two days' whirlwind campaign with Ollie James.

Here are some of the registration figures for Kentucky towns: Lexington 8,074, Winchester 1,584, Frankfort 2,124, Russellville 679, Henderson 945, Owensboro 3,190, Princeton 627. Democrats are pleased everywhere with the results.

The National Magazine for October presents an up-to-date symposium of political, social and humorous causerie in Joe Mitchell's Chapple's "Affair at Wash." whose varied letter press is illustrated by timely portraits of many of the country's celebrities. A warm appreciation of William Hodge, "The Man from Home" is written by the editor to celebrate Mr. Hodge's debut as an author. "Joaquin Miller, the Poet of Peace" by George Wharton James is a warm yet discriminating tribute to the greatest of living American which should become one of the classics of American biography. Mr. Oscar Frichet's notable sketch on "Monte Carlo" takes the reader behind the scenes at the world's greatest gambling resort, and reveals many startling facts about the notorious Casino where thousands have met financial ruin.

Mr. Watterson Takes His Pen In Hand.

The editor of the Courier-Journal has written several strong editorials calling on his fellow Democrats to fall in line and support the Democratic ticket. He generously puts behind him differences of opinion, forgetting whatever personal disappointment she may feel, in the wish that his party may achieve success.

Mr. Watterson recognizes that a defeat in Kentucky this year would mean a long tenure of office for the Republican, and that it would lay the foundation for Republican victory in the nation next year.

For these reasons, he is willing to waive his personal views that the whole party may profit by the getting together of all the discordant elements. Mr. Watterson is rightly regarded as the ablest editor in America. His opinions are quoted more than those of any other man who wields a newspaper pen in this country. Kentucky is proud of his talent, and the wide recognition that his genius has received. His party is always glad to have him leading the cause, for he is a good fighter, and when he turned his thirteen inch guns loose in the editorial columns, the enemy never fails to run up the white flag and surrender.

The Courier-Journal has been giving largely of its space to reports of Democratic meetings and speeches, thus lending material aid to the Democratic Campaign Committee. Now that Mr. Watterson has supplemented this with a hearty editorial support, there is no doubt that Kentucky will go Democratic in November.

Parachute Failed.

Tifton, Ga., Oct. 5.—While engaged in a balloon race at the South Georgia Exposition here this afternoon, Capt. John Brodie fell 700 feet from his balloon and was instantly killed. His parachute failed to fill.

Bradley's Nephew.

Hon. Edwin P. Morrow, Republican, spoke at the Court House Wednesday night in the interest of the Republican ticket. The attendance was disappointing. Mr. Morrow was introduced by Hiram Brown, nominee for representative.

To Revolute Some More.

Mexico City, N. M., Oct. 4.—El Pais, the leading Catholic organ of Mexico, published an extra this afternoon, announcing the establishment of headquarters for a new revolutionary party at San Antonio, Texas, by General Reyes, Creel and Gomez. It asserts that he revolution is scheduled to begin December 1.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have cured me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right one, and down my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but kept on as I was afraid to stop too soon."—Mrs. SAEDE MULLEN, 2723 N. B. St., Elwood, Ind.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential and the advice free.

CARNIVAL COMING.

Week of October 16th Will Make The City Lively.

The Krause Greater Shows who have been engaged to furnish the attractions, both free and paid comes here with letters of recommendations from all cities visited by them. The company is composed of about 150 people, 12 paid attractions, three riding devices, furnishes a Balloon ascension, and a Lady high diver. A Royal Italian Band and the usual number of concessions. The company arrives here Sunday Oct. 15 from Clarksville, Tenn. In its own special train. One of the features of the company is all its help must room and board in the city, as no one sleeps on the grounds.

Registration in Bowling Green was 2116. The Democrats have about 500 majority.

AMUSEMENTS.

A dramatic offering that attracted more favorable criticism last season than possibly any production of recent years is "The Stamped" a strong and absorbingly interesting play of Western life in which A. G. Delamater will present Miss Lillian Buckingham and a capable company at Holland's Opera House on October 12.

Scene From Act 1 "The Stamped" Holland Opera House Thursday Night. "The Stamped" has been written in collaboration with Miss Buckingham by Cecil B. De Mille, who is regarded to-day as one of America's foremost playwrights, having given to theatre-goers such sterling successes as "Strongheart" and David Warfield's great play "The Return of Peter Griin."

Was No Fire.

A false alarm of fire was turned in from Bethel Female College about 9 o'clock Wednesday night. Smoke from burning newspapers in one of the rooms, to rid the room of mosquitoes, caused smoke to issue from a window and some one turned in an alarm. Some excitement was created, but no harm was done.

Rosy As a Girl.

Summit, N. C.—In a letter received from this place, Mr. J. W. Church, the notary public, says: "My wife had been ailing for nearly 12 years, from female ailments, and at times, was unable to leave the house. She suffered agony with her side and back. We tried physicians for years without relief. After these treatments all failed, she took Cardui, and gained in weight at once. Now she is red and rosy as a school girl." Cardui, as a tonic for women, has brought remarkable results. It relieves pain and misery and is the ideal tonic for young and old. Try it. At druggists.

SPEAR GOOD ENOUGH FOR HIM

One Experience With White Man's Weapon Was Enough for African Native.

When Mr. Montague, the English traveler, was in Africa, he gave to a native an old single-barreled gun, and the fellow was delighted. He put in a small handful of powder, and about a quarter of a newspaper on top of it, and finally a ball, and then rammed the whole charge down. Then he departed. In the evening he returned, with his face battered and swollen almost beyond recognition. "What have you been doing?" asked the Englishman, in amazement. The native sat down on the ground and said, sorrowfully: "A little after noon I found the track of elands, and I followed it until I found them feeding. I crept up to one of them. He was twenty yards away. I rested the barrel of the gun on a stone, placed the butt against my nose, directed the muzzle toward the eland, and pulled the trigger. I do not know what happened, for I was blind and deaf for some time, but when I came to I found myself lying at the bottom of the gully. The gun was beside me, my face was as you now see it, and the elands had gone away. Son of a white man, it was very kind of you to give me a gun, but it is too good a gun for me—too strong, too powerful. It needs the wisdom of a white man to rule it. Take it back. Farewell!"

HOW PAPER CAME TO BE

A Wasp in a Garden Was Inspiration to a Nipponese Who Could Grasp Opportunity.

Long years ago a Japanese walked through his pretty garden to his home; his hands were clasped behind his back and he was thinking as he crossed the bridge to pluck a fresh wisteria blossom that hung just over his head. This little gentleman had a great many parcels to send out from his shop every week, and he had always wrapped them in silk; but this was expensive material and he needed something cheaper for his purpose. All at once a wasp came flitting toward him, but he thrust it away that it might not nip his nose, and lo! there at his hand was a wasp's nest! It was made of thin wood pulp, softened into a thin paste by the jaws of the insect, then formed and left to dry. "Why can't I do that same thing?" thought the Japanese merchant. "Get certain wood, form it into a pulp by means of water from the river and make something like this wasp's nest in consistency to wrap about my packages." So this was the way paper was first discovered: A wasp flew across the path of a man who walked one day in a vine-clad garden of old Japan—Ram's Horn.

Japanese Pastime.

Combats between animals of different species are a source of great amusement among the Japanese. One of the most popular contests is that between monkey and goose. The monkey is tied to one of the goose's legs, by means of a cord, and both animals are set down near the bank of a river, or pond. The goose, standing in dread of the monkey, seeks for safety in the water, and the monkey, afraid of the water, exerts himself to the uttermost not to be drawn into it. As a rule, the goose draws the monkey into the water, and then the cunning simian sits astride of the goose, in equestrian fashion. The goose then tries to dive, and the monkey prevents her if he can; and so the fight goes on until the spectators tire, and the animals are released from an uncongenial companionship.

Names for "Good Friday."

Perhaps no Christian festival has so many names as Good Friday. Our Anglo-Saxon and Danish forefathers called it "Long Friday," in allusion to the length of the day's services and fasting; in France it is "Holy Friday," in Germany either "Stillier Freitag" (Quiet Friday) or "Charfreitag," in allusion perhaps to the exhibition of the crucifix for adoration after being crucified all through Lent. In the Greek church it has been known at various times as "The Pascha of the Cross," "The Preparation," "The Redemption" and "The Day of the Cross," and to these names the Latins have added "The Day of the Lord's Passion," "The Sixth Holy Day of the Pascha," and many others. "Good Friday" seems to be peculiar to the English language.

The Lesson.

Odd how you can pick up a lesson in something, no matter which way you turn, or which corner you happen to round on, says the New York Press. The other day a man who was taking his matutinal jaunt to the Eighty-first street station of the elevated found himself watching with sympathetic interest a chunky bull pup trotting valiantly down the street with a dog biscuit held between his teeth. The pup's owner, walking slowly in his wake, met his occasional backward glance with an adamant stare. Pup was being disciplined and was showing his thoroughbredness nobly. Incidentally he was teaching everybody on the block a lesson in self-control.

Hard Words.

"There are some people I know ought to be made to eat their words." "In that case they would probably have chronic indigestion."

SERVICE OF BIRDS TO MAN

Insects That Destroy Crops and Injure Live Stock Are Their Natural Food.

Among the creatures that render service to mankind the birds occupy a foremost place. It is their function to suppress the insects that play havoc with the farmer's hard-earned crops.

Fifty-three per cent. of the food of birds in one locality was found to consist of the larvae of the disease-disseminating mosquitoes. Horseflies are the burden not only of horses, but of other valuable stock, and the larvae of this fly are the natural food of several species of birds. The fever tick, so injurious to cattle, is the natural food of the kill-deer and the plover. Corn, cotton and other crops are destroyed to a large extent by grasshoppers, and there are at least 23 species of birds that feed upon grasshoppers. Grass lands and grain crops in general suffer greatly from various insect pests, which are destroyed in vast multitudes by birds. The greatly dreaded boll weevil is food for the plover, the kill-deer and others of the feathered tribe.

It is a common experience to see birds following the plow and consuming grubs that are destructive to garden and other valuable plants. These friends of the planter should in every state be protected by rigid legislation.

HEROISM OF FIRE FIGHTERS

Chief Croker's Men Thought Little of Death When It Was a Question of Their Work.

Former Chief Croker of New York, in World's Work, says that, although the whole fire service is founded on the principle of obedience, it is almost impossible to drag a man from danger when his battle blood is up.

"In 1905," he says, "I lost three good men in a big warehouse fire in Thirteenth street through recklessness inspired by this spirit. The building had been pretty well gutted and one of the walls was getting shaky. Directly under this wall were three men from an engine company hugging a 'lead' of hose, their helmets down over their eyes, and playing their water on the flames, which almost singed their faces. I saw their danger—would have been obvious to anyone but these three fight-innaded heroes—and shouted: 'Get back there, men! Get back from that wall.'

"They paid as much attention to me as if they had been stone deaf. I ran over and shoved one after the other back into the street out of danger.

"When you're told to get back, get back," I said. 'You obey orders.'

"Then I turned my back and hurried of the germs of the disease, wall fell before I had gone ten yards. I looked around for the three men. They were nowhere in sight! The moment my back was turned they had rushed back to play their stream in that place of peril, and when the wall fell it buried them beneath the bricks—dead."

SLEEPY DRIVER A NUISANCE.

When Charles Lockwood fell fast asleep while driving his two-horse vegetable wagon the other day, traffic was tied up for a considerable time in one of New York's busiest streets. As the horses walked slowly the trolley traffic was blocked. Several cars crawled slowly behind him, but he slept on despite the clanging of the gongs. A policeman poked him with his nightstick, but he only fell over into the wagon and continued his slumber. The policeman then pulled the truck off the car lines, and after much prodding awakened the driver. Lockwood's temper was considerably ruffled at the rude awakening, and so abusive was he that the policeman marched him off to a police court.

MORE GOOD ROADS WANTED

Congressman French's Proposal for the Expenditure of $200,000,000 in Five Years Meets Approval.

The proposal that the government spend $20,000,000 a year for five years and the states a like sum in building new roads, offered by Representative French of Idaho, will find general favor. Sooner or later we must abandon our present random and systemless building of roads and substitute for it a definite plan. Why not start in now?

The plan of Mr. French seems eminently fair, and the total sum—$200,000,000—while of course insufficient for the entire country, would give satisfying results. Nothing would give a more decided impetus to the "See-America-First" movement, and nothing would give the people of the country broader views. Today few people travel except in a restricted local zone, but with good roads and the use of automobiles becoming more general every day, the east and west could be more neighborly, while the north and south could hobnob with each other. Mr. French's proposal should receive the serious consideration of congress.—Boston Globe.

DON'T ABUSE OTHER PEOPLE

Making Spiteful Remarks is Easy, but Provincial and by No Means Clever.

There is nothing clever in making spiteful remarks about people, even though at the moment they may raise a laugh among the hearers who would not for the world be indiscreet enough to utter such themselves. A finished man or woman of the world holds his hatred, says Emerson, at arm's length, and does not remember spite. Nothing is quite so provincial as making conversation a string of hateful personalities. There is not a person of average intelligence who could not acquire a reputation for the wit which scintillates in the abuse of other people were he to utter, instead of repressing, the first impulsive criticism that comes to mind when some vulnerable person—and who is not vulnerable?—is under discussion.

BULL AND SNAKE IN BATTLE.

A furious fight apparently took place the other night in the "Wild Australia" inclosure at the Festival of Empire at the Crystal Palace, for one of the attendants found a valuable carpet snake dead near a bull, the reptile's head being completely smashed. The bull had been bitten by the snake, but examination showed that it had not been poisoned, although the animal was suffering from fright.

It is thought that the snake, which is 18 feet long, forced its way out of its house into the stock yard in which the Australian cattle are kept. There the reptile, which weighed 55 pounds, probably fell foul of the bull. The bull, after being bitten, probably succeeded in tripping on the snake or battering it with his head. The snake could not have possibly escaped into the grounds because of the high galvanized fencing which runs round the stock yard.—London Standard.

STRANGE DIET.

'After drinking carbolic acid and swallowing a door key, three-year-old Harry Fulton of Monticello, N. Y., is enjoying life as much as any of his playmates. Several days ago he found a bottle of acid and sampled it. Prompt action of physicians saved him. The other day, presumably feeling the necessity of a brace lining to his stomach for acid experiments, he proceeded to swallow the ancient door key. He shows no ill effects, but the doctors say an operation will be necessary. There is consternation in the Fulton household. Harry holds the only key to the front door, and does not seem to care what may happen.

CHILD'S NARROW ESCAPE.

A baby girl, Irene Angwin, had a miraculous escape from death at Port Melbourne, Australia, the other morning. The child, who is the daughter of William Angwin, an engine driver, toddled from her home near a railway crossing, and got on to the line. An engine on its way to the Port Melbourne sheds struck her on the side, and threw her a distance of ten yards. When picked up the little one cried for "Mummy." She was found to be suffering from a fractured skull, but she is likely

JOHN MUIR'S CURIOUS STORY

How He Was Appraised by Telepathy of the Arrival of an Old Friend.

John Muir, in his new book, "My First Summer in the Sierras," narrates a curious instance of telepathy. He spent the summer of 1869 in the beautiful wilderness around the Yosemite valley. One day he was busily sketching on the North Dome when suddenly he became possessed with the notion that his friend, Prof. J. D. Butler of the University of Wisconsin, was below him in the valley. He jumped up, full of the idea of meeting him, being almost as much startled as if some one had unexpectedly touched him and made him look up. Instantly he went running down the slope and along the brink of the valley, looking for a way to the bottom, feeling drawn irresistibly.

Gradually his common sense convinced him that he could not possibly reach the hotel until after everybody would be asleep for the night. He therefore compelled himself to stop, but the next day he went into the valley and found that Professor Butler had arrived the evening before, unexpected by anybody. He had been four or five miles distant at the moment when Mr. Muir was so suddenly apprised of his presence.

"He had just entered the valley by way of the Coulterville trail," says the author, "and was coming past El Capitan when his presence struck me. Had he then looked toward the North Dome with a good glass he might have seen me jump up from my work and run toward him. This seems the one well defined marvel of my life of the kind called supernatural."

COW FRIGHTENED MINERS.

An amusing story of how a cow badly scared some miners comes from Larksville, near Wilkesbarre, Pa. Straying in search of better herbage, a cow belonging to Mrs. Patrick Fogarty was swallowed by a mine cave-in. The cave-in was over old mine workings of the Kingston Coal company and it deposited her with a broken horn, many cuts and bruises in an old gangway, and her bellows of fright, echoing weirdly down the gangway and through the mine, terrified many of the mine workers. Others, realizing what had happened, went to the cow's aid, and drove the bewildered animal along the gangway and to the front of a slope, and after great effort got her to climb the slope to the surface.

BALLOONISTS' MISFORTUNE.

Five military balloonists, who were on a practice trip in an army balloon, recently had a thrilling experience near Montargis, France, where all but the pilot were successively thrown out of the basket to the ground, and rendered unconscious. The balloonists were caught by strong gusts of wind. They prepared to come down, and one of the party was suddenly thrown out of the basket. The balloon instantly bounded up, and the remaining aeronauts opened the escape-valve. As it was coming down again, the balloon was caught in a sort of whirlwind, and the four balloonists were thrown out one after the other. The pilot was the only one who escaped with only slight injuries.

CHANGE OF VENUE

Widow of Judge Cantrill Says She Cannot Secure a Fair Trial in Scott County.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 5.—A case that is creating general comment is the seeking of a change of venue by Mrs. Mary Cecil Cantrill, widow of Judge Cantrill, of the Court of Appeals, claiming that she is unable to secure a fair trial in this county.

In the last term of court Mrs. Cantrill and Contractor James P. Donovan were sued by the city. The jury brought in a verdict in favor of Donovan, but failed to agree as to Mrs. Cantrill's liability. Thursday Mrs. Cantrill asked for a change of venue, claiming she is involved in litigation in several suits with corporations and influential citizens and that she cannot get a just trial in Scott county.

The case grew out of an injury sustained by Mrs. Carrie Groff in front of Mrs. Cantrill's property. Mrs. Groff recovered over $3,000 damages from the city which is seeking to recover against Mrs. Cantrill on the grounds that the accident was the result of her negligence, the contractor having left some logs in the street while constructing a concrete sidewalk in front of her property.

Not a Day In Bed.

Gramling, S. C.—In a letter from Gramling, Mrs. Lula Walden says: "I was so weak before I began taking Cardui, that it tired me to walk just a little. Since taking it, I do all the housework for my family of nine, and have not been in bed a day. Cardui is the greatest remedy for women, on earth." Weak women need Cardui. It is the ideal woman's tonic, because it is especially adapted for women's needs. It relieves backache, headache, dragging feelings, and other female misery. Try Cardui. A few doses will show you what it can do for you. It may be just what you want.

AMUSEMENTS

Adolph H. Engstrom, the celebrated Norwegian tenor who is to be heard here during the coming Innes' Band engagement at the Union Tabernacle on Wednesday, October 18, will be remembered as the soloist accompanying the famous Orpheus Club of Stockholm during its recent tour of America.

Mr. Engstrom is said to have a voice in which is combined a true lyric quality with a wonderfully warm sympathetic musical temperament. He will be heard here in the famous Canio's Lament from Leoncavallo's Pagliacci and in a scene and duet with Mme. Beatrice Van Loon from the new opera by Innes which is to have its premiere at the Chicago Auditorium in February.

In addition to Mme. Van Loon and Mr. Engstrom, E. A. Franklin, a celebrated Flute Soloist, and several other notable soloists will be heard.

Smith-Carroll Reunion.

The reunion of the Smith and Carroll families at Mr. C. W. Smith's Wednesday was attended by a large number of the descendants of the pioneers, Zachariah Smith and James Carroll, and a good many invited friends. A fine dinner was served and everybody had a good time.
